stopped and did not return any error message when using "start" command unix_newbie: there's a key combination that will help you log in with the gui user ikonia, the only problem is the unity desktop freezes i.e. i do not get mouse/keyboard responsiveness unix_newbie: in that case, it would appear that your desktop is working fine - if you see it to not respond, it's not responding Greetings, anyone able to assist with my install of ubuntu/precise 64bit? unix_newbie: please try logging in with the gui user ikonia, i am using the gui user how do i log in with the gui user? unix_newbie: as in: the user name you setup when you installed? Greetings, anyone able to assist with my install of ubuntu/precise 64bit? I am having a number of issues installing. unix_newbie: you can do this via the command line or you can log in with the gui user - it depends what you want unix_newbie: ok, so you should have an autologin system where it will autologin to the gui user ikonia, it says i already logged in unix_newbie: so it's logged in unix_newbie: what is the problem then? ikonia, the problem is the unity desktop and mouse/keyboard is not responsive unix_newbie: can you click on things? unix_newbie: are you logged in as the correct user? 82157476af
